Rutland Could Be Right!

by Rosine de Bounevialle

So the Tories could find but one taker in their search for "true blue" Party candidates in all 20 of the wards in Rutland (Daily Telegraph, Tuesday, May 4th, 1999, pg 11.) during the recent local elections. If only that stagnating state of affairs presaged the total decline and demise of "Party Politics" how happy would we be with both! But as Rutland is the smallest county in England and has a Conservative MP in the ridiculous shape of Alan Duncan, a close confidant of William Hague, to find that but one of their number would stand as a local member is remarkable, which says something about the state of democracy.

Will you make a stand for Rutland?

On the 6th May, all 20 Rutland Council wards will elect a Councillor to serve for the next four years.

To work well, the council needs good councillors. Would you like to be a councillor?

In the course of the next few weeks, your local Conservative Party will be selecting its candidates for the local elections in May.

Will you put your name forward? Is there a neighbour or friend who you would like to recommend?

Through our democratic procedures we want to choose the best people to put before the voters of Rutland. We invite anyone interested to contact us immediately, or please recommend someone.

Your county needs you

Your County Needs You:
the ridiculous appeal in local papers

It looks as if the natives of Rutland have decided that neither their collective nor their individual welfare would be materially affected beneficially enough to warrant the resulting "expense sheet" connected with any of the Chosen Ones' adoption, promotion and subsequent annual increment for what might be only intermitent and/or even insignificant voluntary presence in the debating society known as the House of Commons. Therefore, this seems an appropriate time to consider the history of the role played by the institution sometimes known as the "MOTHER OF PARLIAMENTS" which made its original and somewhat tentative appearance in 1265 A.D. under the auspices of Earl Simon de Montfort when he called representatives of the boroughs to gather for debate; and that assembly's pattern was in its essential features, the standard that was eventually followed and has lasted until this day. However, in those initial days, the gatherings were occasional and at irregular intervals. It was under the direction of Edward I that the "parliament" finally put on the essentials of its present form. Earl Simon was strong among the clergy, strong among the people at large, but much less strong among the great men of the realm, and thus, at first, found it difficult to find, distinct and varied representation of the buroughs: nevertheless, that 1265 parliament set the standard that was, in the end, followed and which lasted till our own time. But the business conducted in those assemblies shows that: *"the duties of a popular assembly were held to be: not to enact new laws, but to declare the old ones and to procure better observance." It was not, however until 1295 that Edward I definitely adopted the model which Simon had set him. It was under him that parliament finally put on the essentials of its present form, though the Monarch still retained the royal right to accept or reject any parliamentary petitions. Here is a lovely quote which shows what a great King Edward I was: *"When, at the Papal bidding, the English clergy refused for a moment to contribute to the needs of the English State, the great Edward found the means to put them beyond the pale of English law." And that so contradicts the assertions of twentieth century history concerning the "unpatriotism" of Catholic kings that it underlines the reason for the destruction of that royal power by the "you know who's" who brought to bastard birth, in the seventeenth century, the "permanent parliament" - that minion of "their" Money Power (the BANK OF ENGLAND) which made willing tools of Protestant usurpers, and martyrs and/or exiles of post-Reformation-Catholic-Kings - and (though contemporary comment seemingly ignores them) enemies of like-minded rulers, such as: Hitler, Mussolini, Pinochet, Salazar and Franco: all Catholics, whether saints or sinners.

Well: Christ Jesus did say, plainly enough:
"Who is not with Me, is against Me."
So where would we have chosen to be on that First Good Friday?

Postscript....

The Black Death is Raging Still

When the deadly virus was decimating the cities and towns of England in the Middle Ages the humanitarians, who were yet unaffected, drove carts along the plague-ridden streets exhorting those yet surviving to: "Bring out your dead", so that they could be taken and buried in the newly organised mass graveyards without the city limits instead of remaining to fester, spreading further deadly disease.

Today, our very nation and race is in the grip of an equally deadly virus, only it is a political one - the plague of Party Politics - and our country is in mortal danger of having its head chopped off. Since it is already moribund ; but this corpse will never be brought out for internment, because the people will not know their Sovereign's state is dead and that its carcass is being devoured by the worms that infest its shuttered House.

Kingship is as old as the world - or rather - we should say, it is as eternal as God since he is the King of Kings, and whenever men were tempted by Satan to rebel against the eternal rule in either Church or State, who ever led the attack, had to do it in the name of 'People' or else be recognised as merely a usurper; kingship remains the rule of ages. No one it seems, could invent a substitute that "would lend an air of veresimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative."

Whether the result of rebellion was called a Republic, a Commonwealth, a Dictatorship or whatever, there was always a 'sovereign' figure, ostensibly in charge, even when frail ones were allegedly dominated by favourites."

So what has turned kings into slaves without losing their titles? In one word DEBT: all pervading, usurious debt: so surely all that is necessary for a return to royal rule is the issue of "free money". So why is that simple remedy not advocated in court or counting house? The answer to that is easy: - the penalty for a successful exposition of the identity of the makers, manipulators and lenders of spurious money from Jerusalem to the 'National' Bank of any alleged 'free' country will, without any doubt result in the ruin and/or death of the expositor - probably both.

So - even supposing any hero should dare - his relations and/or friends will never "bring out their dead", rather will they bury them in the dark and dead of night, preferably under their own soil, if they have it.... who wants to end in a procession of tumbrels? Much better "join the club" be it Parliament, the Stock Exchange or the Banking system (or Ford Open Prison?) and toe the usurers line and be a companion in the conspiracy of silence, or does your soul revolt ?

Democracy and Dictatorship

It is fairly obvious that the enormous disorder and chaos in this world is not the result alone of the flagrant breach of practically every ethical postulate, but is also due to the retreat of knowledge and reason from the domain of politics.... It really seems that statesmanship is incompatible with "politics" in the democratic sense. We have seen great statesmanship (of the ethical as well as of the Macchiavellian pattern) in monarchies, aristocratic republics and post-revolutionary tyrannies. Yet, the complete lack of security of tenure, necessitating a constant pre-occupation with mere "politics" is a fatal handicap in democracies....

The fact remains that in all democratic nations the person of the "politician" is treated with contempt, and "politics" are looked upon by a healthy public opinion as a cocktail of deceit, lying, treachery, double-dealing, graft, theft, insincerty, perjury, imposture, dishonorable compromise and other vices.

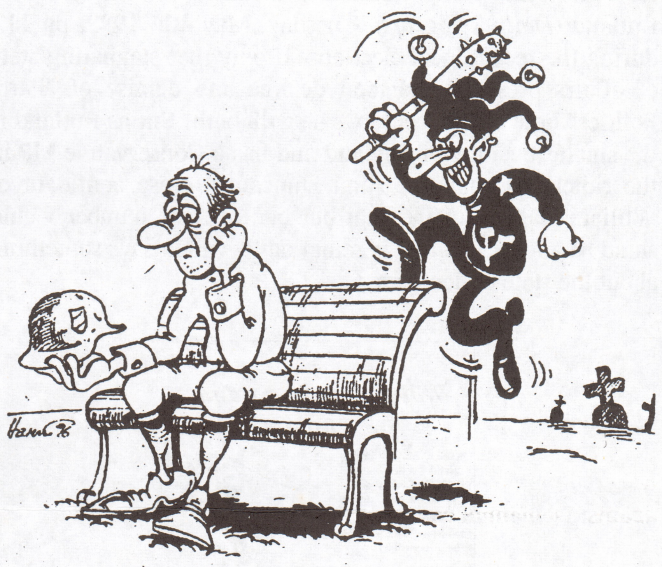
THE LONELIEST MAN IN BRITAIN

Anthony Sawoniuk, 78, was the only man to have faced a full trial after the eight year inquiry by the War Crimes Investigation Unit (Scotland Yard) set up as a result of the extremely controversial War Crimes Act of 1991 (By a Tory governnment. Ed).

Mr. Sawoniuk, a retired British Rail ticket inspector, on the 1st of April, 1999, was given two life sentences for murdering unknown Jews, in the then Soviet Union, more than half a century ago. Facing the might of World Jewry and the goyim of the 'British State' what chance did he have ?

Now this partially blind and deaf elderly man is subjected to constant taunts and physical assaults. Meanwhile the debate rages between our senior Judges about whether 'Life' should mean 'Life' or really Life until Death as urged by Janner and Co..

Are we alone in feeling that we do not have enough lamposts in this country for the lackey goyim who do this ?



SHAMELESS !

John Demjanjuk is again facing the loss of his U.S. citizenship and deportation, 22 years after he was first accused of being 'Ivan the Terrible', the infamous guard who operated a non-existent 'gas chamber' at the Treblinka 'death camp' during WWII.

The Justice Department's Office of Special Investigation (IOS) filed a civil complaint in federal court, May 19th, 1999, accusing the retired 79-year-old Cleveland auto worker of participating "in the process by which thousands of Jews were murdered."

This is the same agency of 'Nazi-hunters' which was criticized by a U.S. appellate court for "reckless" witholding of evidence that would have cleared Demjanjuk years ago.

The new complaint drops the charge that Demjanjuk was 'Ivan the Terrible'. Incredibly, it instead alleges that he was a guard at the Sobibor 'death camp' in Poland and at the Majdanek and Flossenburg concentration camps. It also accuses him of serving in the Nazi-run Trawniki unit that allegedly participated in a campaign to annihilate the Jews of Europe.

In 1977, Demjanjuk was first accused of operating the non-existent 'gas chamber' at Treblinka. His U.S. citizenship was revoked in 1981, and five years later he was extradited to Israel where he was convicted and sentenced to die.

He returned to the United States in 1993 when evidence proved that he was a victim of mistaken identity. Despite overturning his conviction in the 'Ivan the Terrible' case, the Israeli Supreme Court said it was convinced Demjanjuk had worked for the Nazis during the 'Holocaust'. ("Heads we win, tails you lose").

With the new complaint, the case against Demjanjuk is the longest-running attempt by the U.S. government to revoke an alleged Nazi's citizenship.

His son-in-law, Ed Nishnic, said the Justice Department was unfairly targeting a broke and broken man.

"I think it's a darn shame that a government with a blank-cheque budget can pick out one perrson with very limited means and basically run him into the ground", he said.

Demjanjuk, a native of the Ukraine in the former Soviet Union, has denied serving as a guard in any concentration camp.

Naturally the renewed persecution by the IOS has won praise from Jewish groups.

"When Demjanjuk worked at a Cleveland auto plant, he built cars for a living. When he served at Sobibor, he killed Jews for a living." said Neal Sher, who headed the OSSI from 1983 to 1994, during the period when that agency actively hid information proving Demjanjuk's innocence, and is now head of the International Commission on Holocaust Era Insurance Claims !!

The Justice Department will try to have him deported, said agency spokesman Myron Marlin. Where Demjamjuk would be sent is unknowm.

If deported, Demjanjuk could choose what country he would go to, but that nation would have to accept him. Meanwhile, a country that wants to bring a criminal case against Denjanjuk can ask at any time for his extradition.

Asked whether Israel would extradite Demjanjuk again, Elan Steinberg, executive director of the World Jewish Congress in New York, said: "I doubt very much whether it would happen as a matter of practical reality because of the wrenching effect of the previous extradition."

And so the viscious, calculating, sneering campaigns continue worldwide. There does though seem to be a growing feeling that the Jews are, as they always do, overeaching themselves, and that the backlash will not be long in coming.

June 8, 1992 - Israeli Supreme Court judge says prosecutors must present ironclad case that Demjanjuk was "Ivan" or there's no point in proceeding.

June 30, 1993 - U.S. District Court Judge Thomas A. Wiseman, appointed to investigate Justice Department action, says he found "substantial doubt" that Demjanjuk was "Ivan" but upholds extradition.

July 29, 1993 - Israeli Supreme Court rules 5 - 0 that Demjanjuk was not "Ivan the Terrible".

Nov. 17, 1993 - Appeals Court rules government fraudulently witheld evidence; reverses its own order that authorized Demjanjuk's extradition in 1986.

April 3, 1997 - Israel's Yediot Ahronot daily newspaper publishes interview in which Demjanjuk broke years of silence, and not surprisingly, said he was bitter and angry with his persecution by the Jewish state.

Nov. 25, 1997 - Demjanjuk's attorney, citing alleged fraud by government attorneys, asks a judge to restore Demjanjuk's U.S. citizenship.

Feb. 20, 1998 - U.S. District Court Judge Paul R. Matia overturns decision stripping Demjanjuk of his citizenship.

May 19, 1999 - U.S. Justice Department moves to again revoke Demjanjuk's citizenship, claiming that he was indeed a death camp guard, but was someone else and indeed somewhere else !
(What does this say about all of the 'eye-witnesses' who perjured themselves during the trial in Israel and what may it tell us about the trial of Anthony Sawoniuk in London ?)

John Demjanjuk at least had the support of the relatively powerful Ukrainian lobby in the U.S., Anthony Sawoniuk was and is friendless....
We will attempt to obtain his prison address....

CROWN OF THORNS
"THAT LOATHSOME, EVIL, SICK AND SATANIC CREED" - COMMUNISM

by Pavel Andreyevitch Bykov

We are pleased to present a new article by Pavel Bykov, Chairman of the National Monarchist Party of Russia, as the latest installment of his Crown of Thorns series for Candour.

The Commander - in - Chief of the White Siberian Army, Admiral Alexander Vassielevitch Kolchak, once referred to communism as "....that loathsome, evil, sick and satanic creed" during the course of a general conversation with his Chief - of - Staff, General P.A. Sakharov; it is highly likely that all Candour readers as well as supporters of the Russian National Monarchist cause would heartily affirm this sentiment. However, what is a matter of almost desperate concern at this late stage of the twentieth century is the disturbing fact that some "liberal" journalists are now speaking of a form of "remodelled socialism" or new "democratic socialist" parties re-emerging and gaining influence and power. May God prevent such a cataclysm from ever taking place! Communism, in whatever form it may seek to mask its real nature and intentions (world domination, mass murder and terrorism) must never, never be allowed to come crawling out of the sewers and seek to present itself as something not as profoundly diseased and evil as it undoubtedly is.

Russian Monarchists generally feel that thinking individuals everywhere simply must focus on what Marxian Communism actually is and was, the terrible, murderous evil it represented and sought to impose by brute force upon the entire Human Race; the blatant hypocrisy, double standards and duplicitous nature of most "Socialists", "Marxists", call them what you will, and their addiction to murder and genocide as the primary way of achieving their perverted ends. Their justification of outright lies ("dialectic"), their ruthless extermination of all religion and religious belief at every opportunity they received, and the distastful character of most Marxists themselves, starting with Marx himself, surely one of the most odious, unbearable, arrogant, dirty, hypocritical examples of humanity ever conceived upon this earth. How can anyone, literally, venerate so odious (in every respect) and diseased a creature as Karl Marx is beyond my capacity to comprehend. He adopted the 'Doctor' title himself, for he never succeeded in passing a single examination in his entire worthless life. In fact his main preoccupation seems to have been the consistent (attempted) seduction of virgins and other mens' wives, the running up of huge gambling debts (never paid) and the continual mouthing off about the "downtrodden". As he never held down a job in his entire life, sponging off his rich friend Engels in later years, one suspects he rather fits the term "lumpen proletariat" which he himself invented to describe the kind of lazy, unemployable yob who would find difficulty fitting into his system were it applied. Marx's alleged belief that if one didn't work one shouldn't eat should really have been tested with regard to his own rather unique position. When asked what his aim in life was, he replied "To dethrone God". That truly about sums up the man. A true heir of Weishaupt and the Illuminati, in every sense. His personal life was as distasteful as his political views. Whilst living in London he seduced and impregnated his maidservant. On another occasion he pawned her shoes in order to help pay for his childrens' private education. It could well be asked what on earth was such an avowed "socialist" doing with maidservants at all, and why were his children privately educated ? Nothing like practising what you preach. The web of hypocrisy and self-interest is something that runs throughout "socialism" from start to finish, from Marx to Blair. During the recent European elections it was noted - at least by those with eyes to see, in the Biblical context, that the address given by the Communist "Socialist Labour Party" candidate Arthur Scargill, was in the Barbican, London. This is considered one of the most affluent and upmarket areas of London. Of course, Communist leaders always manage to find the best housing for themselves and their families and hangers on. We saw it in Russia with Stalin - and others - with their countless country Dachas - Tito in Yugoslavia, and of course, his clone, that well known and practising socialist, Slobodan Milosevic, who must own at least six houses and one palace, surging ahead of the Emperor Diocletian even in the property stakes. (Diocletian's palace at Split, Yugoslavia, is actually a most beautiful and spacious edifice, well worth a visit if not demolished by American bombs). The simple fact is that communism is not about a better life for all, as its self deceiving adherents have always claimed what it is about is seizure of power by any means, by evil, corrupt and greedy individuals; the physical extermination of any who oppose them - followed by the weaving into a world system of these captive nations and their incorporation into the world dictatorship of Marxism or its evil twin Finance Plutocracy (International Finance Capitalism). The real movers and shakers use both Marxism and plutocracy to bring about their blackhearted New World Order, for in truth, they control and direct both. Real opponents of Communism have long recognised this obvious truth. Namely, that International Banks and Bankers have always been well at the forefront in the promotion of Marxism and have aided its grossly illegal and immoral seizures of entire nations from their respective peoples - to suit the materialism of usurious Mammon!

A few historic examples may illustrate the forgoing paragraph. In 1917, following the illegal usurpation of power from Russia's true and rightful ruler, His Imperial Majesty Czar Nicholas II, of Blessed Memory Eternal. 'Trotsky' (real name Bronstein) was residing in New York, USA - he married a banker's daughter: dare one ask why ? As soon as he learned of events in Russia he decided to return, now that there was no longer any danger that he might be required to perform military duty in the Russian Army in the war against Germany.

He booked a sea passage via Newfoundland. Who paid for his trip? The bankers of course, and the British authorities were instructed not to interfere with his journey. The financiers behind revolution wanted as many of their creatures as possible in position and ready to execute their orders and injunctions in the two or three Russian cities where decisive events could be set in motion, usurped, and thereafter, directed. Moscow, St. Petersburg and Kiev: and that is how events transpired. Around the same time, Lenin and his chief supporters, not one of them Russian, were loaded like sacks of diseased refuse (appropriate, for such they surely were) into the infamous "Sealed Train" by the German Government, whose role in these proceedings was certainly less than honourable and driven through Central Europe to be dumped at the Finland Station, St. Petersburg. Other agent provocateurs were flooding into Russia from New York, being concentrated in the aforementioned three locations, where they could do most damage. Added to them were communists, released prisoners from the gaols, perverts, bandits and all the debris of society who are useful to the international manipulators in these circumstances. They were provided with arms from looted military arsenals, and led by the kind of people we have been discussing in this essay; they then set about the dastardly act of rebellion, against a great Czar and his loyal army, whom they stabbed in the back, as he faced Russia's external enemy. Following the two rebellions of 1917 (The first against the Czar , in February; the second against Kerensky in October) the land of Holy Russia was delivered to the Devil for the next 80 years.

Certain it has always been that Communism is not made up of members of the manual working class, for whom it claims to act. I well remember, many years ago now, during my University years, in this country, (England), how members and supporters of extreme left groups all seemed to fit into certain categories, and how most of them shared similar characteristics and backgrounds. In particular, I observed that the followers of a particularly evil, nasty, violent and viscious group of criminals named the "Socialist Workers Party", all seemed to fit into a certain type of neat pocket. Of course, they were not "working class" by any stretch of the imagination, for they were all the kinder of bankers, stockbrokers, lawyers, "financial consultants", etc, apart from their self appointed Leader, Tony Cliff/Gluckstein?, who maintained a dubious double citizenship of Britain and Israel, and of course, in common with their forbears in 1917, in other people's countries, used false names and nom de plumes in order to hide their real identities from the masses they still seek to deceive. These creatures all lived in the finest apartments, houses or estates. What sick canting hypocrisy! Of course they never needed to take part-time jobs to supplement their meagre grants - they were so affluent it was offensive. I reiterate, they were not workers. They were, and are Magalomaniac hypocrites driven by pure evil, often identified as Satan. They are the arrogant projections of a New World Order be they Bankers, Marxists, Zionists, or Communists. They are all Internationalists, liberals, athiests and materialists. They have changed their political clothes many times this century but their Satanic inspiration and aim of a one world dictatorship remains unchanged. They wield massive power and influence. Bankers and financiers weigh down the world with usury and the chains of debt. They still seek to destroy religion with nebulous and cranky "scientific" half theories and the promotion of immorality generally to weaken and destroy peoples and nations. Communism and Plutocracy are the tools of this vast conspiracy now as thay were in 1918. These conspirators must be opposed and defeated. In Russia we can only do this with the Restoration of thr Romanov Monarchy, the rightful and God Ordained true Rulers of the Russian land. In the West, your answers must rest with emergent Nationalist forces, but it is my hope that even here greatly strengthened Monarchies will be the outcome, for only a Monarch can truly represent and defend his subjects.

Perhaps the most hideous aspect of Marxian Communism is its inbuilt murderous nature and predisposition. Communists are by nature murderers, they simply cannot be any other, this is the only way that they can ever retain power. Lenin proudly declared that two thirds of humanity could die in order to secure the victory of "Socialism". Stalin, Pol Pot and others put his dictum into effect with ghastly efficiency. In Cambodia more than two million were butchered. In my own beloved Russia, over sixty millions - and this is the lower estimate.

Beginning with our dear Czar Martyr, St. Nicholas II and our beloved Imperial Family; murdered in a filthy cellar by savages, in the Ural mining town of Ekaterinburg. Can one imagine the bestial scene? Our noble Czar, the Czarina, Alexander Feodorovna - sick, confined to a wheelchair, suffering a heart condition. The Czarevitch, Alexis Nicholaevitch, a haemophiliac, aged only fourteen. The four Grand Duchesses of Russia: Olga, Tatiana, Maria and Anastasia. Four innocent, lovely young women in the first bloom of their youthful beauty. Their unpardonable crime? The crime they must all be killed for? They were not Communists. Also murdered with the Imperial Family were Doctor Evgeny Botkin, the two loyal and courageous servants Trupp and Kharitinov: the maid, Anna Demidova. All were shot and repeatedly bayoneted. Poor Anna Demidova was chased screaming around the cellar with bayonets and killed this way, by these brave "workers".... needless to say, there was hardly a Russian among them. The murder squad were 'Latvians', 'Lithuanians', released 'Austrian' prisoners of war, hardened CHEKA cadres and released convicts from the local prison. Yurosky, the Commander of the squad was a Jew. He surrounded the Ipatiev House, the "House of Special Purpose", with guards, as he put it, "In case we have trouble with the Russians". Imagine this scene from Hell.... the drunken red murderers even looted their innocent victims, stealing small personal items and pieces of jewelry. The entire Imperial Family and their loyal retainers died in that house of slaughter. At the last second Dr. Botkin stepped in front of his Czar, attempting to shield him and thus took the first volley of shots. Jurovsky, angry at this defiant act of courageous loyalty shot both the Czar and the Doctor. What followed was not only the butchery of the Imperial Family. It was the calculated genocide of the Russian Nation.

In accordance with the precepts of Marxism, an immediate WAR is always declared upon all religion, following any Communist seizure of power.... this occurred in Russia, China, Tibet, Cambodia and those parts of Spain under Red control from 1936 - 39. In Russia the murderous persecution of the Russian Orthodox Church commenced with the Bolshevik murder of Patriarch Tikhon, Head of the Clergy who had bravely spoken up for the Czars. Also killed were the Bishop of Kiev, and Bishop Hermogen of Tobolsk who was drowned in the Tobol river with several elderly parishioners by the Soviet CHEKA. Thousands of monks, priests and nuns died similarly. More than two million peasant believers were murdered by the persecutors who made Diocletian, Aurelian, and Maximin Diaa look mild by comparison. Other faiths (Except the Jewish) suffered also. The Buddhist Buryiats, who lived East of mighty Lake Baikal, the "Pearl of Siberia" saw their temples burned and their Lamas killed. Many fled South. The Muslims in Russia suffered a persecution as great as the Orthodox Believers. The reds had a particularly malevolent hatred of Muslims and Islam as many Muslims had fought on the White side in the Civil War.

The Crimean Tartars were decimated. Their Mosques burned and their Imams butchered. At Kokand in Central Asia, Red Guards surrounded the town, and then systematically murdered the 5,000 Islamic scholars who had been meeting there. In this way the Communists sought to remove all religion from Russia. As late as 1985 and 1986 Mikhail Gorbachev was stating publicly that all good Marxists must make war on Religion and Believers. They never change. The message of Communism is always the same. Murderous, materialistic and atheist, savage and indicative of a very long hatred for all Christian Civilisation, held by those who created, nurtured and disseminated the evil that is Marxism.

It is worth remembering that the murderous ideas of Communism were put into effect in the world's most populous state, China, with deadly effect, resulting in the deaths of some ONE HUNDRED MILLION Chinese opposed to Communism. Followers of the great and venerable philosopher Confucious were murdered as were slightly well off peasants, soldiers, policemen, Buddists, Christians, Trade Union Members and, of course, the Tibetans, who have suffered so much under Communism that they truly deserve a Special Article solely on their plight. Only Taiwan (Nationalist China) protected by a heroic soldiery and several hundred miles of ocean held back the Red hordes. Much of the credit for the successful defence of Taiwan must go to General Chiang Kai Sheck, (more on him in future issues, but not so complimetary! Ed.) one of the foremost opponents of Bolshevism this century who undoubtedly well knew the nature of the beast he faced. He also understood that to defeat the Reds one needs a strong Army, good Education, good unyielding LEADERSHIP and the firm eradication of poverty*. Where far sighted Nationalist and Monarchist Leaders understood these facts and acted upon them, the Marxists were - easily - wiped out. Generals Franco and Pinochet both knew this, as did General P.N. Wrangel, the last Commander of the White Russian Army.

The only reason Wrangel ultimately failed was due to the fact our forces held only the small Crimean Peninsula and some territory East of Lake Baikal in Siberia, including the Port of Vladivostock, when he took over the Supreme Command in 1920. His social reforms, instituted in all land held by White Forces in 1920 were immensly popular. Had the Whites been in a position of numerical parity with the Bolsheviks, they would have won. As it was, they were outnumbered by some 100 - 1. Whether operating in street gangs looking for elderly Nationalists to beat up or in armies outnumbering the opposition 10 - 1 (As in their attack on Finland in 1939). Marxists can only ever win when there are many more of them than their intended victims. Even then they often receive a thrashing.

In the Winter War with Finland, 1939 - 40 the Communists took a humiliating pounding from the numerically inferior but much more motivated Finnish Army. At the Battle of Suomassalmi , the Soviet 44th Division, more than 10,000 troops, was totally obliterated by a few hundred Finnish ski troops.

General Chiang Kai Sheck's overall view that Communism can be defeated is borne out by the above and by subsequent events. In Moscow, the triumphant rebuilding of the Church of Christ the Saviour is a slap in the face for socialism and the evil it stands for. This great Church was demolished by Stalin, and thanks to the prayers, piety, contributions and labour of thousands of Russian Orthodox Christians, was rebuilt in the 1990's. It stands forever as a Testament to the Triumph of the Cross and National, Imperial, Holy Russia over alien imposed atheist materialism.

It is our prayer that God's Grace and Mercy will further Crown this Victory by the elevation of a Romanov Prince to the Throne of All Russia.

Let us not forget Russia, China, Camodia, Tibet, and all those who have suffered, been brutalised or martyred, by Communism in the 80 year rampage of hatred across the world. Of course most Western people seem only to be aware of how "six million Jews" .... etc, etc, etc..... They could not think otherwise as it is repeated continually, parrot fashion, in some form every day in every conceivable way. What sickens Russians, is the arrogant assumption that only dead Jews seem to count. Do not One Hundred Million Chinese murdered by Communism scream for Justice?

Do not Twenty Million Russians murdered between 1941-45 and another sixty million slaughtered by Communism, and God Only Knows how many further innocents in Spain, Tibet, Malaya, Burma, the Baltic States and Ukraine, et al; count for anything?

Apparently not, as most British people seem not to know that these massacres took place at all. They are too busy being force-fed lies about the Holohoax and how wonderful is "Socialism" !!

Perhaps it is high time that the British as a people questioned the motivation of those who control the media*.

I can only Pray that Almighty God will spare us another - Communist Holocaust.

All* true and faithful nationalists know "who controls the media...." it is rather the money manufactured out of nothing by the Satanic enemy that needs to be recognised and attacked by more, many more, than "we few, we happy few". Ed.

Britain's shame

The forced repatriation of refugees was ethnic cleansing by another name

peter worthington

Nikolai Tolstoy has worked hard to detail WW II's 'last secret'

The chilling word of our times — ethnic cleansing — has different meanings to different people, but at its most benign, it is forcing people to become refugees, as happened in Kosovo and, before that, in Bosnia.

Britain and NATO have said it was Yugoslav President Slobo Milosevic's alleged plan to "ethnically cleanse" Kosovo of its Albanian population that ostensibly caused the NATO/U.S. air strikes.

NATO's press briefings during the 78 days of air strikes, via the ubiquitous working-class accent of Britain's Jamie Shea, seldom failed to mention "ethnic cleansing."

A cynic might note it was Britain itself, after the Second World War, which escalated "ethnic cleansing" into state policy — only in those days it was called "forced repatriation."

Immediately after the war, tens of thousands of refugees, possibly hundreds of thousands —prisoners of war, escapers from communism — were forcibly sent back to Stalin's Soviet Union and Tito's Yugoslavia and certain death.

Britain instigated the policy, which the U.S. echoed, giving it the cynical code name Operation Keelhaul. This shameful policy has been dubbed by Alexander Solzhenitsyn as the "last secret" of the Second World War, in violation of every tenet of decency and justice.

British troops forced men, women and children into boxcars headed for the U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia, using rifle butts as prods.

One British regiment, the London Irish, refused, saying their duty was to fight German soldiers, not club women and children.

American soldiers were more inclined to open the gates of refugee camps, and look the other way as they fled.

Forced repatriation was a humanitarian and political abomination — a war crime every bit as much as the ethnic cleansing of Albanians.

No one has worked harder to expose Britain's shameful secret than British historian Count Nikolai Tolstoy.

For some 25 years, he's dedicated himself first to exposing the policy for the world to see, second to perhaps identifying those responsible.

He's succeeded admirably in the first, failed wretchedly in the second — and suffered accordingly.

Tolstoy is the great grand-nephew of Russia's great novelist (War and Peace) and humanitarian, Count Leo Tolstoy, who repeatedly put his body on the line against injustice.

Nikolai has written three books on forced repatriation, each more revealing than the previous one, as more suppressed information came to light.

NIKOLAI TOLSTOY

Britain has embargoed files pertaining to the policy.

In 1977, his Victims of Yalta was published, followed by Stalin's Secret War in 1981, and then his most controversial book, The Minister and the Massacres, in 1986, in which he named names, was sued, and lost a libel case that I consider a travesty and which has been condemned by the Human Rights Court at Strasbourg.

Britain's Lord Aldington, formerly Brig. Toby Low, successfully sued when Tolstoy identified him as key in implementing the policy.

Aldington acknowledged signing the repatriation orders, along with others, but said there was no way he could have known the refugees would be killed, and that if he had known, they would not have been sent back.

"We were told that international law would be obeyed," he said at the time.

A jury found against Tolstoy, awarding Aldington nearly $3 million in damages in 1990.

Tolstoy, who declared bankruptcy, was denied the right to appeal.

He was in Toronto this spring and is anything but subdued. He says he hasn't paid anything, won't pay, can't pay, and has a book in the works about his trial.

So far, there's been no serious attempt to collect damages and he feels the courts are embarrassed by the whole process.

Forced repatriation was such an appalling policy, even Winston Churchill omitted any reference to it in his Nobel Prize-winning history of the Second World War.

While muted, the issue is far from dead.

The European Commission on Human Rights in Strasbourg has supported Tolstoy.

A semi-retired American lawyer, Charles O'Neall, living in Switzerland, was so offended, he offered to represent him, pro bono, at the prestigious Strasbourg Human Rights Court.

Also named in the The Minister and the Massacres along with Aldington were the late British prime minister Harold MacMillan and the late Thomas (later Lord) Brimelow.

Soldiers the like of Field Marshall Alexander and Gen. Keightley opposed the policy, but obeyed orders.

Some of the displaced people being sent back to communism committed suicide by sawing their throats with barbed wire. Some mothers threw their babies from trains into the river. Panic reigned.

A couple of Canadian officers attached to the British army at the time did their best to short-circuit the policy.

Maj. Herb McFarland of Toronto refused to obey the forced repatriation orders and risked court martial, while Maj. P.H. Barre of the Royal Montreal Regiment worked tirelessly to save the victims.

Because Tolstoy was broke after the libel verdict, Britain's High Court ruled that he had no right to appeal unless he came up with about $250,000 in advance to cover Aldington's legal expenses. And the court denied Tolstoy access to a defence fund set up in his name.

Although the British government would like to silence Tolstoy and any reference to forced repatriation, the Internet has proved an invaluable outlet.

Anyone interested can go to Yahoo on the Internet, search "Tolstoy, Nikolai" and see an account of events that is chilling to those who think British justice is pure and fair.

After the trial, the BBC ran a TV documentary on forced repatriation, which explored why and how Britain could be involved in such a policy — especially when Churchill expressly forbade sending unwilling people back to Stalin.

There's even evidence British officers attached to Tito, participated in the execution of Serb, Croat and Sloven victims.

Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, Boris Yeltsin has ordered Tolstoy be given access to Russian files.

Tolstoy says he's amassed hitherto unknown details that will appear in his next book.

Before Tolstoy's experience, I wouldn't have believed an appeal would be denied anyone in Britain, or that a British trial could be as bizarre as Tolstoy's was.

Some people thrive in adversity — that is, their character sustains them in crises or when times are tough.

Nikolai and Georgina Tolstoy and their three grown daughters and son could be called adversity's children. And they stand defiant.

Anti-Communist Russians in WW II

The last issue of Candour advertised a video featuring 3 films shown recently on REM (Russian national Television). Just to prove that our instincts and/or timing were correct the above article appeared in The Calgary Sunday Sun, July 11, 1999. (Canada). The tone of the article is the same as the video. All of the scenes described here appear in the video....

Tens of thousands of White Cossacks and anti-Communist Russian Volunteers served with the German armed forces through 1941-45. After their surrender to the Western Allies, and believing that they would be treated, honorably, as P.O.W. 's, as were all Allied prisoners by the Germans, they and their families were brutally handed over to the Red NKVD for torture and slaughter.

The movies feature Cossack veterans who escaped repatriation or survived the Gulags. Here, reunited with their German Officers and NCO's at a recent gathering at Leinzs, in the Austrian Alps they tell their story. The video includes rare footage of General Andrie Vlasov and the POA (Russian Volunteer Army). COLOUR & B/W. 3 HOURS.

The Treason of Hollywood
Joe McCarthy Vindicated!

Hollywood Party: How Communism Seduced the American Film Industry in the 1930's and 1940's. By Kenneth Lloyd Billingsley. Prima Publishing, 1998. Hardcover, 365 pages. ISBN: 0761 513 760. $25.00.

Joe McCarthy points at the enemy!

There is an old Latin proverb, veritas magna est et pravelibit: The truth is mighty and will prevail. Maybe so. Question is: can the truth, irrevocably and definitively exposed after 52 years, finally prevail and bring justice to the memory of the most maligned man in modern history? That question arises with the publication of a fascinating new book, Hollywood Party, by Kenneth Billingsley.

It's subject? The late Joe McCarthy junior Republican Senator from Wisconsin, and his hearings to investigate Soviet penetration and subversion of the US Government, labour unions and Hollywood before, during, and after WW II.

Working on KGB documents recovered from Soviet archives - which naturally, McCarthy never saw - Billingsley discloses just how far powerful men and women in Tinseltown, the people behind such hugely popular box office hits as Spatacus, On the Waterfront, High Noon, The Philadelphia Story and dozens more, were prepared to go in their efforts to help advance Stalin's foreign policy objectives, up to and including undermining their own country.

Very early on Stalin identified Hollywood as one of his top five US targets. Quite correctly. Countless producers, writers and stars all proved willing to combine and connive at brainwashing the world about the marvels of the Soviet system. "Message" films such as Mission to Moscow, Song of Russia, North Star and scores of other productions did more to glorify the USSR than the Moscow propaganda machine had any hope of doing.

Where did McCarthy come in? What we know now is that in January 1947 three men went to McCarthy's office with a 100 page FBI report detailing Soviet espionage activities in the US government. The State Department was given that report sometime before, but ignored it. McCarthy, a former circuit court judge with a distinguished war record, agreed to take the report to the American people. So the House Committee on Un-American Activities was born.

McCarthy did not succeed in exposing the full ramifications of Soviet penetration of US society. What he did uncover was sufficient to blow the whistle on the most successful secret war ever waged by one government against another. We know now that the Roosevelt administration was quite literally crawling with Soviet agents.

Unbelievably, the Soviet apparatus seeking to subvert America included the No. 2 man in the State Department, Alger Hiss; the No. 2 man in the US Treasury; Harry Dexter White; the No. 2 man in the Office of Strategic Services (predecessor to the CIA) Darna Lee; and most amazingly of all, the No. 2 man in the White House, Harry Hopkins. In his book, KGB: The Inside Story, Oleg Gordievsky, disclosed that the KGB considered Harry Hopkins as "the most important of all wartime agents in the US".

Exactly as with the State Department, Hollywood was shot through with communists, fellow travellers, dupes, (useful) idiots and agents. The HCUA hearings began in 1947 and continued intermittently until 1956. McCarthy stunned the world with his charges that communists riddled the fabric of the US government, the labour unions, Hollywood: moles guilty of treason, sabotage and subversion on the grand scale.

It was when he moved in on Hollywood that the smear machine began cranking up. He was depicted as a political troglodyte, a reckless fanatic who caused untold grief and injury to innocent persons, who soiled the good name of the United States. He was accused of using the Big Lie, of Red-baiting, of political witch hunts, of guilt by association, of disregard for due process, of using unsubstantiated charges.

Was McCarthy wrong in his pursuit of Hollywood Reds? Absolutely not. He was instinctively right. There was something terribly rotten in the whole US system. The real story about McCarthy is that he was hated and vilified, because he succesfully exposed the guilty. He went after card-carrying communists busy in assisting the expansionist goals of Soviet foreign policy and dedicated to overthrowing capitalism.

Not to its credit, recent disclosures indicate that the US government itself displayed great reluctance to release information it had held upwards of 50 years which would have vindicated McCarthy and shown him to be the victim of an unparalled character assassination instigated and operated by Soviet agents.

Through all the whipped - up hatred, top politicians - right up to the President - watched McCarthy's career incinerated and did nothing while he was hounded to death, all the time with ample proof in their hands that the Rosenbergs were indeed guilty, that Harry Dexter White, Laughlin Currie, Alger Hiss and so many more were indeed active Soviet agents. When taxed on his failure to help expose Soviet infiltration of the US government, Lyndon Johnson replied that he could not possibly associate himself with such a campaign: were such information to be made public, "the Democrats would be driven from office for generations."

A significant figure in subverting Tinseltown was one Ella Winter. In 1938 Winter married wealthy screenwriter and fellow communist, Donald Ogden Stewart, the man who wrote The Philadelphia Story, which earned both he and Cary Grant an Oscar. In Stewart's imperial mansion Winter pursued her crusade for Stalin, recruiting such luminaries as Charlie Chaplin, Humphrey Bogart, Katherine Hepburn, Lauren Bacall and Marlin Brando.

She used her star power to boost a host of communist causes, including the early campaign to keep the US out of the war, leaving Britain to fight alone as long as Moscow maintained its pact with Nazi Germany. Her main effort was to organise a communist front, the Conference of Studio Unions, designed to bring the whole Hollywood work force under one umbrella, so gaining a strangehold on the entire industry, enabling it to dictate terms to the studio moguls and influence film content.

To get the plan off the ground, she needed money. With Stewart, she threw lavish parties paid for by Moscow's San Francisco trade mission, where Hollywood's most glamorous names were plied with drink and flattery. Until he had a change of heart, James Cagney was one of Winter's biggest draws. By 1941 Winter's advocacy of communism had won a whole cluster of stars.

While bombs rained down on London, stars popular in Britain such as Cagney, Bing Crosby and Humphrey Bogart attended fundraising parties thrown by the Stewarts, which helped sponsor strikes in armaments factories making weapons for British troops. Work at the Los Angeles based North American Aviation, building bombers for the Royal Air Force, was briefly halted after Bogart appealed to the workers to put down their tools.

One frequent guest at the Stewart mansion was screenwriter Dalton Trumbo, close friend of William Holden, Bogart, Hepburn and Chaplin. Trumbo, a card-carrying communist, was the "proletarian" author of a bitterly anti-war novel, Johnny Got his Gun, written during the Hitler-Stalin pact and when the Communist Party USA was working flat out to sabotage US defence capabilities. By now Hollywood's highest paid sceenwriter, Trumbo's advancement was largely due to patronage by communists already entrenched in the studio system.

British audiences who were later charmed by Roman Holiday, staring Hepburn and Gregory Peck, would have been less pleased with Trumbo's 1941 film, The Remarkable Andrew. It was pure propaganda, aimed specifically at keeping the US from siding with Britain against Germany. Central character was the ghost of the American hero, Andrew Jackson, played by William Holden, who warned against any alliance with a country "that's already licked."

When Hitler attacked the Soviet Union in June 1941, Stalin instructed that Hollywood do an immediate U-turn, that it now help end US isolation and force it into the war. The San Francisco KGB Bureau increased the flow of cash and by 1943 was dispensing $2 million a month to Hollywood communists. The directive from Moscow to its Hollywood agents was not to make blatant propaganda films, but rather concentrate on "message" "John and Mary" pictures for the masses, pushing socialist thought.

By 1947, with the US government increasingly suspicious of the Soviet Union's ambitions and activities, Hollywood fell directly under the McCarthy shadow. In the hearings into communist subversion in Hollywood some 400 people - actors, actresses, screenwriters, producers, directors and agents - were identified as Communist Party members and fellow travellers. (A ludicrous underestimate. The figure was many times higher, nowhere more so than in the "Hollywood Kremlin," MGM, then the city's most important studio.)

In public, CPUSA leading lights made the inquiry an issue of free speech. They played down their support for Stalin and argued that the US government was trying to destroy their artistic and political expression. Typically, communist fronts were set up to defend them and agitate on their behalf, painting them as great humanitarians: idealists dedicated to justice, high ethics, and a better world for all, ad nauseam.

The ploy worked. When 19 alleged communists were called to Washington to testify, Katherine Hepburn flew them there in her own plane, along with Lauren Bacall, Gary Cooper, Humphrey Bogart, Robert Taylor and Burt Lancaster. On their return, Bogart and Robert Taylor at least, had misgivings about the group and their highly publicised trip, saying it was "ill-advised, even foolish.... I am sorry I did it and now I see I was duped, that I was a victim of the communist conspiracy. It won't happen again."

Appearing before the McCarthy inquiry, nine of the 19 witnesses were cooperative, ten refused to answer questions about their CP membership and related activities, citing as justification the First Amendment and right of freedom of association. Every one, in carefully rehearsed posturing, was defiant, obstreperous, hurling all kinds of charges and invective against the committee.

Termed "hostile witnesses," they quickly became known as the "Hollywood Ten." In November 1947 they were all found guilty of contempt and sentenced to a year in prison.The KGB instructed them to surrender, while outside all would be done to proclaim their innocence and to decree them martyrs. They were writers Alvah Bessie, Lester Cole, Ring Lardner, Jr., John Howard Lawson, Albert Maltz, Samuel Ornitz, Adrian Scott and Dalton Trumbo, director Herbert Biberman and producer-director Edward Dmytryk.

Unfortunately, as we say, the Congressional interrogators and FBI investigators failed to penetrate the real depth of communist subversion in the film capital. Basically, not much was learnt about party operations in Hollywood, largely because none of the cooperative witnesses had ever been in the Party. Misled by double agents in their midst and false information peddled by the KGB, McCarthy left many Soviet sympathisers in key positions in Hollywood, with far reaching influence that affects the industry to this day.

Enough was achieved, however, to provoke strong public reaction. People stayed away from the cinemas in droves. Films which featured known fronters and leftwingers, or had some association with the Hollywood Ten, were picketed. The industry lost millions. It was after that that the studios announced that they were going to blacklist CP members and fellow travellers.

The archive material used by Billingsley shows that all those named by McCarthy were indeed communists and radicals taking their instruction from Moscow. Some were hardcore Stalinists who defended the Soviet dictator even after his atrocities became impossible to deny.

Reflecting atrocious misjudgment, leading US liberal papers such as the New York Times and Washington Post joined the manufactured and scurrilous attack on McCarthy, charging him with lacking elementary ethics, that he incriminated individuals on often trumped up charges that appealed more to emotion than to reason. But by then most of the overt communists had quietly ditched their overt support for the USSR; but continued to find ways of promoting communist propaganda in dozens of films, from Born Free to Easy Rider.

On his release, Trumbo moved to Mexico and worked steadily throughout the blacklist, writing Roman Holiday, The Green Eyed Blond, Sparticus and The Brave One, which won an Oscar in 1956 for his pseudonym, Sally Stubblefield. Once "McCarthyism" and the blacklist died down, Hollywood went out of its way to rehabilitate the Ten. In 1997 there was a gala ceremony, "Hollywood Remembers the Blacklist" at the Shrine Auditorium, home of the Oscars.

What cannot be disputed today is that McCarthy performed a brave and most valuable service for his country. As a reward he was made the object of the most venomous, most long-lived campaign of vilification ever directed toward an American in public life. Little was done to deal with the vital issues he raised 52 years ago and the lib/left continue to stamp on his grave to this day.

Perhaps worse, the hysteria built up around Joe McCarthy left a residual reluctance to investigate or even to discuss the problems of subversion and disloyaty, as was dramatically reflected in the Clinton impeachment proceedings. It also results in an erosion of the political centre. Anti-anti-communism became more prevalent and respectable than anti-communism: the latter being projected as an antiquated and dangerous ideology.

Today, "McCarthyism" is still a scarlet "M" word used by the left as a trump card to terminate debate and intimidate adversaries. Used as a spear to paralyse all opposition to communism, it has become communism's best friend. Will the US Senate now vindicate McCarthy? Don't bet on it. McCarthy himself has become the chief victim of "McCarthyism," a media-generated synonym for indiscriminate and unsubstantiated allegations.

And still the struggle goes on.

America today could use another dose of McCarthy.

More Vindication.... A new book was reviewed in Daily Telegraph, Saturday, July 24, 1999.

VENONA: DECODING SOVIET ESPIONAGE IN AMERICA by John Earl Haynes & Harvey Klehr. Yale.

"....But among the Top Secret files released when the Cold War ended were the results of a joint US-British intelligence operation which suggested, chillingly, that McCarthy might have been right after all."

".... The scope such men had for influencing American policy was immense. But, according to liberal mythology, Hiss was jailed on the most dubious of evidence; Currie was forced into exile by FBI persecution; and White was harried into a fatal heart attack. It was not until 1995 that the Venona releases provided incontrovertible proof that they were all working for Moscow."

Chestnuts From Chesterton

An International Police Force

I have just read a recommendation by Commander Kenworthy which made my blood run cold. It was not at all the sort of recommendation which is supposed to make the the blue blood of aristocrats run cold, when that vigorous naval officer (according to the newspapers) expresses a preference for looking upon the blood when it is red. It was not a proposal to eliminate the King, and/or blow up the Bank of England. I need not say that the Commander does not really propose to blow up the Bank of England; indeed, now I come to think of it, it would be impossible to blow up the Bank of England. At least, it would not do much good, or much harm, according as we happen to regard it. You can storm the Bastille, but you cannot storm the Bank; because it is, properly considered, a house not made with hands. It is an invisible and abstract sort of power. You cannot set fire to a debt or burn down a bankruptcy. You cannot use material weapons against the moral (or immoral) understanding on which all modern finance must repose.

But this is by way of a digression; the point is that my horror at Commander Kenworthy's proposal has nothing to do with the sort of horror that is expressed against him by many politicians of the other school. I am not a Bolshevist, or even a Socialist, but I am quite likely to be called a revolutionist by the same people who call him a revolutionist. It is perhaps the only point on which we should completely agree. On many matters on which others especially blame him I should especially praise him. But I blame him for having made my blood run cold (as described above) by a proposal that he has made in a weekly paper called the Humanist. What alarms me is not his violence, but his calm. It is not any suggestion of a class war, or any other kind of war; it is a suggestion of peace. And that peace appears to me so terrifying that a war of the whole world would seem in comparison to be a sort of soothing platitude.

He proposes that the League of Nations should be reinforced by an International Police Force. The whole world is to be patrolled by an international policeman. Most of us have found something to criticise even in a national policeman; and it is possible that the national policeman has occasionally found something to criticise in us. But at least we have always liked the policeman because he was national. I think it was Mr. Ernest Newman, the brilliant music critic, who once pointed out that the most English thing in the world was an English country policeman. On the same principle the French policeman is very French. He says, in an abstract and philosophical way, "Justice has found finger prints in the larder"; when he means that he has found them. On the same principle, a Russian policeman is a Russian. On the same principle, an American policeman is Irish.

But all these formidable figures look feeble compared with the terrific cosmopolitan policeman whom Commander Kenworthy wishes to call out of the void. I do not know how to desribe my moral paralysis in his presence except by quoting the whole paragraph which creates the picture.

"My own solution is on the lines of an international Police Force controlled by the League of Nations. I cannot see that disarmament is practical without this. The personel of the Police Force would be recruited from all the Nations at a very youthful age. These international police cadets would be brought up together, live together, play their sports and games and speak a common language. All their teaching would be on the lines of internationalism. Not only would they visit their own parents and families when they went on leave, but they would pay special visits to each other's families, in different countries from their own, for the purpose of getting to know the outlook and point of view of strange peoples. Such a scheme, properly managed, would ensure the rearing of a generation of young police warriors immune from racial hatreds and the fever of nationalism".

There are a great many things which might be said about this interesting passage. It might be remarked that a fever which lasts for five or six hundred years at least is rather a prolonged and problematical malady for any medical man to deal with so promptly. It might be asked, on the assumption that they all talked one language, what language they would talk? The only thing worth calling a language that ever approached to being an international language was Latin. It may be that these young policemen are conceived as conversing in Ciceronian diction, or joining in the Latin hymns of the Middle Ages. It might be imagined, but somehow I do not think it is imagined by Commander Kenworthy. If he means that they would talk in Volapuk or Esperanto, or any of those modern attempts at a universal language, I am content to answer that in that case they could not talk at all. No talking that can be called talking is conducted in a language in which there is no literature. If they are to talk by new and arbitary symbols, I would as soon that they talked by signs, and conducted their international and idealistic conversations with the dumb alphabet. It might also be asked whether it is so absolutely certain that the only armed police of the world would be "controlled by the League of Nations"; and whether it is not barely possible that the League of Nations would be controlled by the armed police.

But the one obvious and outstanding thing to say about this striking project is in the nature of an apology to its author. Nobody in the face of this fact can again accuse Commander Kenworthy of being a promoter of popular anarchy or even of ordinary democracy. He proposes to create an armed aristocracy far more exclusive and distinct than any aristocracy of the past. The feudal nobility which ruled Europe at the end of the Dark Ages and before the beginning of the true Middle Ages, was perhaps a military international body of something of the same sort. They also claimed, and to some extent possessed, the solitary privilege of bearing arms. They also spoke a common language; it was French. They also lived together, played their sports and games together, and all the rest of it. They also had an international point of view, in the sense that nationality had only begun to be felt, while the bond of chivalry was felt very strongly indeed.

I do not merely sneer at that great military organisation, which perhaps saved us from Islam and certainly handed down a code of high manners to Europe. Commander Kenworthy may admire them as much as I do. He may not. But if he supposes that such a special order could be created without coming to value itself and impose itself; if he imagines that these men could be brought up together, live together, play their sports and games, and speak a common language, without feeling themselves a Class - then I do not know where his historical imagination has got to. The feudal nobles did have many links of local affection which made them understand different types in their own land; they did not only "visit their own parents and families when they went on leave", they sometimes visited other people's also. They never quite succeeded in being such a military caste as is imagined here as dominating the world.

But there is another little query I have about all those who invoke these international notions in so very facile a fashion. We all wish to prevent disagreements, and it can only be done by agreements. It would therefore be well to agree on something; and the real difficulty in the modern world is that it has next to nothing on which to agree. But where do intelligent people like Commander Kenworthy get that curious idea that people only quarrel because they do not know each other? Sometimes they quarrel because they do know each other. We do always resist "a strange people" because we do not understand their point of view. Sometimes we do it because we do understand their point of view. We understand it and think it detestable, as Commander Kenworthy and I both think many points of view detestable. And surely this attitude is strangest of all in one who encourages industrial quarrels and defiances at home. What two sets of people could be closer to each other, in a physical sense, than factory-owners and factory hands? Employers and employees do not have to cross the sea to discover what each other look like, yet they have beem known occasionally to disagree. Curiously enough, rumours of some such disagreement reach me even as I write.

Note:- The above article by GKC was written in October 1926 just as the General Strike was coming, yet we are increasingly hearing expressed the ideas of Commander Kenworthy - that is, for the need of an international police to control the world. The League of Nations - which was the forerunner of the United Nations - was formed in the aftermath of World War I, a war that we are constantly told was provoked by racial hatred and Nationalism. We are constantly told this, but it is far from being true. It was not Nationalism, but Internationalism and its greed which provoked the First World War, and which brought misery, poverty and death to millions throughout Europe.

Everywhere we look in the modern world, we find the United Nations sticking its nose into other people's business, as though it had some kind of moral authority to do so. It does not, and is simply an instrument of Power Politics, which presents an illusion of democracy amongst the Nations, but is, in fact, the dictatorship of the Few over the Many. This dictatorship is called the Security Council. It is a dictatorship, and a one-sided dictatorship at that, for it is clear that whilst Iraq, Libya, Iran, Serbia and Croatia are all "threats to world peace", Israel has broken more UN resolutions than any other country in the world, and which has a chemical, biological and nuclear weapons arsenal second only to the Super Powers, is held to be a force for "Peace, Democracy and Justice". Believe it if you can! And the "peace keeping forces" that have become so much a part of the political landscape in the last few years throughout the world are no more than Commander Kenworthy's international police cadets in action.

The sole difference that exists between Chesterton's day and ours is that the lies and the stupidities of Kenworthy's type have almost come to fruition. World government appears to just around the corner - all the media is telling us so in so many words - and the calls to have a force capable of dealing with "renegades like Saddam and Milosevic" grow ever more shrill - but always remember it is not over until it's over.

Dear Mr. Todd,

Many thanks for your letter....

by all means make any use you wish in Candour of my writings.

I am grateful for the mention of my case and reproduction of my writings.

Please thank Rosine for her footnote to your letter.

Mr. Colin Jordan M.A. 1958.
League of Empire Loyalist

The Revengers

Intoxicated with the stunning success of the opening Act of their drama of revenge, staged in August 1998 and announced in our Revengers leaflet, copies of which have appeared under the windscreen wipers of police vehicles in many parts of North Yorkshire, including the county police headquarters, much to their mortification. North Yorkshire's Thought Police troupe have now struck again with a Second Act, opening on March 31, 1999.

Prodded to ever greater dramatic activity by Colin Jordan's political opponents such as that master producer of repression, the head of the Jewish Board of Deputies, Eldred Tabachnik; his accomplice, that thief of freedom, our Jewish Home Secretary, Red Commissar 'Jack' Straw; and a baying chorus of parliamentary betrayers of Britain who have received our first Revengers leaflet and other leaflets of ours; Britain's KGB took to the stage again against their 75-year-old, disabled exposer.

Evading the formality of an arrest warrant, they seized Colin Jordan in a Harrogate street while shopping, and then detained him for 10 hours in a police cell so that they could in his absence ransack his home again, this time without the restrictions of a magistrate's search warrant, making off with many more of his belongings in their role of licensed looters.

Simultaneously, another team of the performers of spite, seized in a Knaresborough street a 63-year-old lady, simply because as her only conceivable "crime" she happens to live in a house owned by their political prey, Colin Jordan, and to be his friend.

Back in 1956, when Soviet tanks crushed the Hungarian uprising for freedom, she escaped to an England she believed was the land of the free. Now, a cancer patient weakened by three succesive operations and endangered by stress, she has been shown by hours in a police cell under Britain's counterpart of the communist KGB how very wrong she has been.

Straw's political police of the "Special Branch" are now subjecting both victims to recurrent police bail and attempted incriminatory questioning - at which, to their manifest fury, they elicit only protest at the persecution and persistent "No Comment", during their frantic efforts to please their alien and renegade masters by attempting to concoct a convincing prosecution case out of their vindictive assault on freedom of thought and expression under cover of illegitimate "law".

If you believe in freedom and justice, demand an end to this political persecution by the Revengers as agents of political tyranny, scandalously misusing a vast amount of police time and a vast amount of taxpayer's money.

BE THERE!

You Have Seen for years Britain -your Britain - bit by bit handed over to outsiders by a rat-pack of renegades known as Members of Parliament.

You Have Seen ever since a war supposed to have been fought to keep your country for your own folk, a veritable invasion of Afro-Asians from every corner of the globe, promoted by these renegades, contrary to the will of the British people, who have never been consulted in the matter by these pretenders of "democracy", and most certainly contrary to their vital interests.

You Have Seen these encouraged incomers increase and increase by continuing high immigration and fast breeding so that great sections of our main towns are no longer really British territory and now resemble foreign parts.

You Have Seen privileges and preferences extended to these incomers by renegades in and out of Parliament, the traitors in our midst, with your money poured out in paying for the presence of these incomers in one or another of dozens of ways while plenty of your own folk go in want.

You Have Seen new law introduced to protect them from criticism and punish your own people if they exercise the freedom of speech they were used to of old, so much so that the wartime slogan YOUR FREEDOM IS IN PERIL. DEFEND IT WITH ALL YOUR MIGHT has far more significance today than ever before.

You Have Seen British patriotism derided while everyone else's nationalism has been upheld with reverence and enthusiasm. Your people's past has been denigrated as a matter of shame: your national and racial pride has been attacked at every turn by an alien-dominated media in league with the alien-minded government and administration.

You Have Seen in short your country dragged down in a few decades from being a Great Britain, head of the greatest empire in the world has ever seen, to a dismal shadow of her former self, set to continue to decline in humiliating decay and degeneracy.

You Have Seen clearly who are responsible for this: your misleaders who are the greatest criminals in your country's history who richly deserve execution after due conviction for this monstrous crime against your race and nation.

NOW YOU ARE SET TO SEE these topmost criminals of all times, engaged in dispossessing the British in Britain, put on trial a long and leading campaigner for the British in Britain, under an illegitimate law enabling misrepresentation of love of one's own kind, which is racial patriotism, as a crime of "racial hatred". The victim of these evil people is Colin Jordan.

SEE THIS AS YOUR GREAT OPPORTUNITY TO STAND UP FOR LAND AND FOLK AGAINST THE BETRAYERS. Attend his forthcoming trial which will be at either Leeds or York Crown Court during the later part of 1999. Rally there against the renegades! Turn the event into a powerful demonstration against his accusers and persecutors, a condemnation of the traitors themselves!

At the time of going to press we have no further details of Mr. Jordan's trial date or the location but we will keep you updated as news comes in. Please keep in touch with Mr. Colin Jordan by writing to him direct at:
Gothic Ripples, HG3 5JQ.

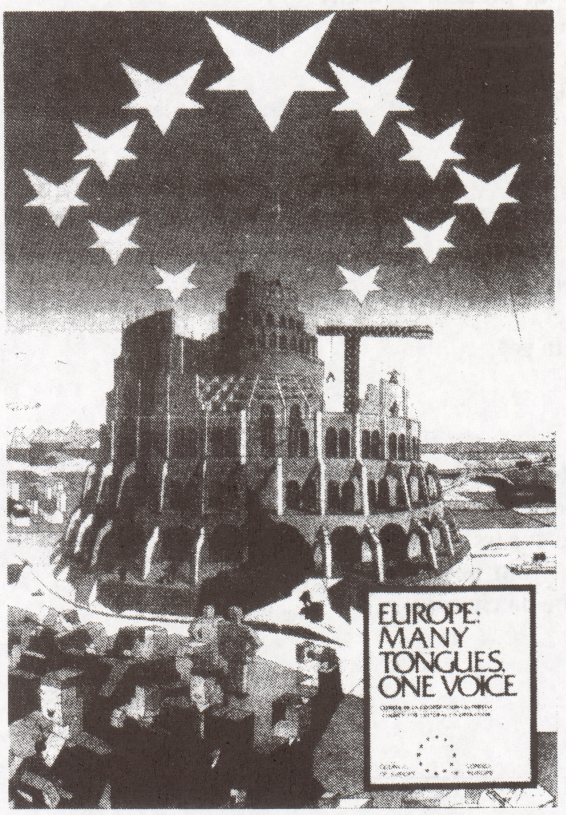
Candour 3rd & 10th August, 1956

"IN APRIL, 1956, achieved world-wide acclaim for its vigorous campaign to protest during the visit of Bulganin and Kruschev. The League delivered a ten-foot wooden spoon for the Prime Minister to 10 Downing St. (a reference to the adage: "Who sups with the Devil must use a long spoon"), with a wreath: "In honourable and pitiful memory of the millions of victims of the Soviet regime". When the Prime Minister greeted the visitors at Victoria Station, Miss Leslie Greene, accompanied by Mr. Colin Jordan, the League's Midlands organiser, announced over a portable amplifier: "Sir Anthony Eden has just shaken hands with murder." League vans toured London warning people: "Don't trust Russian friendship; it is false friendship." When Bulganin and Kruschev went to Greenwich, the League outwitted the specially strengthened security forces, enabling Mr. Philip Burbidge to broadcast a message from the Isle of Dogs which carried clearly across the river to Greenwich. Midlands members combined the use of posters, banners and loudspeakervans to provide an effective reception when the Soviet leaders visited Birmingham, as a result of which Mr. Colin Jordan was invited by Independent Television to broadcast to Midlands viewers."

666 and all that....

The Tower of Babel



An EU propaganda poster which we originally reproduced in the June 1995 issue of Candour.

1999. The new European Parliament building in Strasbourg, France.

Now that the New Tower of Babel is 'open for business' it provides yet more evidence of what will be the ultimate in the unbounded arrogance of our enemies. This from the Rev. Ian Paisley, MEP for Ulster.

"It is certainly a building of the Space Age. The seats of its massive hemisphere are designed like the crew seats in the Star Trek space machines. There are 679 of them - but wait for it! While these seats are allocated to members, one seat remains unallocated and unoccupied. The number of the seat is 666."

From the Book of Revelations,13:18. "Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of The Beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hunded three score and six."

It appears that his seat is reserved....

50 WORD HISTORY

DEATH OF MERRIE ENGLAND

When Mother Church owned most of the land, the peasants grazed and cultivated it to their good.

Christus Rex ruled in Church and State. Monarch, Lords and Commons worshipped, lived and learned in harmony.

Then Usurers came, conquered, and levied interest.

Debt reigns over the Ruined.

Can we help ?

Dear Miss de Bounevialle,
I am currently researching a biography of 'Fay' Taylour, a racing driver who was interned during the Second World War for her Fascist beliefs. Fay was a member of the British Union.
Fay's close friend W.A. 'Tony' Dickson was also interned. He was not in the BU, but I am told he was a member of the Imperial Fascist League.
Keen as I am to verify this claim and to trace any records of his possible membership of the IFL, I am writing in the hope that you may be able to assist me in my search for such information.
I would be most grateful for any assistance you are able to offer me, and if you are unable to help, would welcome any suggestions you may have regarding alternative sources I can contact.
With many thanks in anticipation and looking forward to hearing from you.

Yours Sincerely,
Deborah Cherry.

We have found some references in the library but Mrs. Cherry already has them. Until we get into the hundreds of files here that is all we can do at present.

Can any Candour readers be of assistance ? If so, please send book reference and if possible the ISBN code, or photocopies of articles and photographs and we will pass them on.
Thank you.

BOOKS FROM FOREST HOUSE

TRADITIONALIST'S ANTHOLOGY

Compiled by Elizabeth, Lady Freeman.

"In an earlier Dark Age it was the monasteries that held and safe-guarded the accumulated wisdom and truth neglected - if not abhored - by contemporary marauders. Today, when it appears that Shangri-la exists only in the imagination of James Hilton, everybody's grandchildren will probably have to search among the forgotten contents of attics and second-hand bookshops for it, but with minds loaded with establishment lies, as to ever greater extent they will be, they will not know what to look for unless provided with a key. This anthology of Lady Freeman's choice is just such a key. It contains a collection of gems so excellent in themselves that they "make hungry where most (they) satisfy".

From the Preface by Rosine de Bounevialle.

Clothbound. 171pp. £8.00.

CATHOLIC ACTION

by Liam Connolly.

From the Preface: "This essay on Catholic Action*.... was originally written with France and the French situation in mind and thus explains the occasional very explicit reference to that country. Nonetheless, as publishers, we believe that what he has written here is wholly relevant to what is left of the Catholic world in the West, and thus deserves a wider audience."*

Cardcover. 40pp. £2.50.

New Video Title....

Mr. Randy Weaver

at Jubilation '96

Perhaps making Jubilation '96 the unforgettable and historic event that it has become, was the presence of Mr. Randy Weaver. In his first appearance before a patriotic audience, Mr. Weaver spoke from his heart sharing intimate details about his family's tragedy never before heard by the public.

(In 1992 Randy, his family and a friend, were on his property in the remote mountain region of Ruby Ridge in Idaho. Weaver had previously been accused, after an FBI setup using an informer, of possessing 2 illegally sawn-off shotguns. As a result, an army of some 800 FBI, Police, ATF, etc., with tanks, helicopters, artillery and grenade launchers surrounded the property. In the process they killed Samuel, Weaver's 14 year old son and his dog. Then during the ensuing siege while she was holding their baby in arms his wife was shot through the head by a FBI sniper.)

In this unique video footage an emotional Randy answers over 40 questions from a large audience of supporters - April 6, 1996. Also features Carl Klang performing his song Wheresoever Eagles Gather - The Ballad of Randy Weaver.

They Were White and They Were Slaves....

is a thoroughly researched challenge to the conventional historiography of colonial and industrial labour, a stunning journey into a hidden epoch, the slave trade in Whites, hundreds of thousands of whom were kidnapped, chained, whipped and worked to death in the American colonies and during the Industrial Revolution. This is a chronicle that has never been fully told, part of a vital heritage that has until now comprised the dustiest shelf in the darkest corner of suppressed history.

We now have available a stock of the latest edition of They Were White and They Were Slaves by Michael A. Hoffman (4th Edition, 10th Printing. 1998.) 137 Pages. Illustrated.
